Lunch
The committee took a lunch break from 12:45 p.m. to 1:15 p.m. and discussed the logistics of planning the WECM course review workshop.

Chair Joyce Williams called the meeting back to order at 1:23 p.m., and the committee reviewed the discussions held during the lunch break.

Pre-Work Group: Robin Garrett reported that the group considered reviewing the Special Topics and Local Need courses, as well as existing certifications, prior to the workshop. A question arose about the expectations for the education level of the workers, since most job descriptions for Cloud Computing require a bachelor’s degree. Ms. Williams explained that the business representatives she spoke with indicated that they would accept qualified applicants who did not have a bachelor’s degree, if they had relevant experience. The group suggested creating a list of competencies listed in Special Topics and Local Need courses, certifications, and existing WECM and ACGM courses, and submitting the list to the business representatives who will be attending the workshop to ask them what they considered to be the top 10 or 20 competencies. The business representatives would also be asked what certifications they recognize, if any. The group also considered reviewing prior work experience and knowledge requirements from job descriptions, looking at the first two years of the bachelor’s degree programs in Cloud Computing, and determining the education level a student would need prior to starting in the Cloud Computing program.

Employer Input Group: Rafael Brisita reported that the group considered the difficulty in scheduling a face-to-face meeting and suggested sending out a survey through college advisory committees and workforce boards asking the employers to list the competencies they require of their new employees. More outcomes could be added to the WECM courses based on the employers’ input.

Timing of Workshop: Olga Valerio reported that the group considered when the workshop should meet in light of when the WECM Advisory Committee will be meeting again. The group discussed whether it would be feasible for members to attend the workshop in November and then attend the advisory committee meeting in December. The group considered if it would be more expedient to delegate the approval of the courses to the members attending the workshop, or if it would be necessary to hold a meeting of the advisory committee to approve the courses.

A motion was made by Rob Blair to delegate the authority to approve the courses written and revised at the course review workshop focused on Cloud Computing content to the advisory committee members attending the workshop. The motion was seconded by Robin Garrett, voted on, and passed.

Joyce Williams offered to work on the preparatory work for the workshop with coordinating board staff. James Chegwidden and Robin Garrett offered to serve as facilitators at the workshop on November 2. Cindy Griffith offered to serve as mentor at the workshop.

Future agenda items and resources required for next meeting

The next meeting is scheduled for December 7, 2018.

Adjournment

Chair Joyce Williams adjourned the meeting at 2:11 p.m.
